AUGUST BELMONT'S JUVENILE FILLY ESTABLISHES RECORD AT EMPIRE CITY

HOW FAIR BEATS BIG

Five and a Half Furlongs in 1:05 2-5.

SPRINT FOR DOMINIQUE

Easy Victor in West Point Handicap-Driftwood Wins for James Butler.

By HENRY V. KING.

August Belmont's How Fair ran oon at the Empire City track. This daughter of Fair Play and Hour Hand beat a high class field of young misses and hung up a new track rec five and a half furlongs. She stepped the distance without apf a second better than the old mark stablished by Sea Pirate in 1918. By her victory How Fair showed that is one of the best filles of the sea-extremely fast Marionette and Gadfly and galloped home the winner by three lenarths. Gadfly was second and Lustrous, stable nate of How Fair, was third

There was no doubt about the result at any stage of the journey. McAtes got her off well and she stepped to the front in the first few strides. Marionette ran with her for a short distance and then quit. As Marionette faitered How Fair went on by herself and was under restraint all through the home-stretch.

Dominique, the aged son of Peter Quince, scored his fifth consecutive victory for Frank Keeney, who got him immediately after Dave Gideon took him away from Harry F. Sinclair in a selling race for $9,500. Dominique showed that he liked the track and that the limin between the liked the track and that the limin between the limin between the limin between the limin to the front. Once in command the vettern jookey took a mice steadying hold on him and rated him ourageous colt Dry Moon was too close in... They believed Dominique would quit when challenged in the stretch. But his opponents didn't get a chance to challenge him. When traightened out for home Lyke gave im his head and the race was over in few bounds. Dominique sped away om his field and galloped the redinder of the way to the judges of a cased up by three lengths.

etermined rush and took the second end of the purse. Oil Man was third. Dominique stepped over the short six furlong route in the good time of James Butler scored his second victory of the meeting in the fifth race when his Driftwood, a daughter of Pebbles and Napping, ran away from a big field of juvenile mailens. She showed a keen flight of speed. In the first quarter of a mile she opened up a dozen lengths on her opponents and then cantered the remainder of the way by half a dozen lengths. Owasco was second and Temptress third. After the race Owasco was claimed.

Blue Brush, by Sweep and Blue Ball, beat home a big field of cheap platers in the second race. He won by a head, and his victory was due in great part to the fine ride he received from Snookums Bell. Bell got him away well, rated him along behind the pace to the head of the home stretch, then went to the front, and when challenged

JOCK HUTCHISON, Former American Holder of the British Open Golf Championship ON THE LAW OF THE LINKS By Jock Hutchison

ANSWER TO THE PROBLEM OF INDICATING THE LINE OF PLAY. Mrs. H. A. Jackson Wins First According to the rules, a player would have a right to ask any one to Daughter of Fair Play Runs indicate the line to the hole before the shot is played. But this person so doing would not be permitted to stand there while the shot is played. He can only be of service in pointing out the line.

The fact that he was a friend would not enter into the case. He would be permitted, however, to give the player any advice or suggestion which would influence the player in picking the line of play or in the method of who led the scoring, her round of 94 being a very fine performance considering that the players from first to last had to battle against a high wind.

The elevation of the Westchester-Biltmore links makes, this course an open target for most of the winds that blow. There was simply no escaping them this time but despite the conditions Mrs. Jackson did not encounter anything like real trouble until she teed up for the long seventeenth. This hole cost the former national titleholder an 8. It was really the only blemish on Mrs. Jackson's card.

WOMEN LAUNCH NEW World Series Refunds Being Made Gradually

GOLF ASSOCIATION D BARROW staggered through signature No. 1,300 last evening and then called it a day. Ed is signing checks for refunds to those who bought tickets for that well known unplayed sixth game of the world series. About 10,000 checks will have to be sent to fans who paid the world series. About 10,000 checks will have to be sent to fans who paid something like $85,000 for the game which never saw the light of day, and the task is an arduous one. Each application for a refund must be checked back to the original application for tickets. It looks as if speculators and those who bought from speculators may be in for a disappointment.

Barrow said that many fans has shown irrication and anxiety over their failure to get prompt refunds. "It will take at least two weeks to clear this thing up. Why, oh why, did Bush blow up in the fifth game!" walled Ed as he dragged his weary body out of the Yankee offices. "Please ask those fans to be patient."

No single country, the American organization has contended, should have the blue ribbon event of tennis as its own indefinitely. British tennis officials have been in a rather awkward position on the question. Many of them have recognized the justice of the Americans' stand but have had their hands tied by a promise made to subscribers to bonds that made the building of the new Wimbledon possible. The award of the world championship tournament in perpetuity had been the magnet that attracted the bond subscriptions. It assured the financial success of Wimbledon for an indefinite period and rendered the bonds a good investment.

seventy yards. Her victory was a lucky one. Richard T. Wilson's Vendor was the best horse in the race.

An assistant starter held him at the post, and while rounding the first turn Jelly on Sea Mint almost knocked him over the fence. The bumping cost vendor half a dozen lengths, Despite the mishap he ran well and made up a lots of lost ground. At the judges he was third, less than a length behind the winner. He was running strong at the end and would have been in front in a few more jumps. For his foul riding Jelly was severely reprimanded by the stewards.

Assistant starters are necessary evils but something must be done to prevent them holding horses at the post. Within the last few days they have killed the chances of half a dozen horses. At Jamaica on Saturday one of them held Juno until after his opponents had gone seventy yards. On Tuesday Duncecap and Violinist were held while their opponents sped away.
